

RITE NOW @ ROP

Henry Adams said, “a teacher affects eternity; no one can tell where his influence stops.” Now, if that’s not a superpower, then I don’t know what is. The teachers at Canyon State Academy are heroes. They come to work each day to inspire students to go for their goals and earn them. Through the pandemic when things seemed uncertain more than not, the teachers at CSA took every change in stride and always put the students first. Within the last year, they taught traditional classes, cohorts, and even virtually to make sure each student has their needs met. When many teachers have worked from home, the CSA teachers have reported to work each day to support the mission of improving the lives of youth.

To keep morale up especially during the holidays, teachers enjoyed daily tokens of appreciation including coffee and pastries, a trivia competition, custom ornaments, and a cider and hot chocolate bar that was enjoyed by staff and students alike.

This has been a tough time for all educators, so when you see one please give them a big thank you because they are all heroes.
